Aloha Saint Louis School Parents and Guardians,

This week’s newsletter is a little different from those I’ve sent you in the past. Instead of providing you a series of pictures to view, I now present you our new video celebrating Saint Louis School’s 170th year in existence. The video itself contains shots of both current and former Crusaders singing in a recording studio and learning in school. From scenes with alumnus Dr. Mamiya in front of Mamiya Theater to another Saint Louis School graduate Chester Vause standing on the Fighting Crusader he created as a Freshman 50 years ago, this video celebrates our very proud history.

Below is a picture of Sam Kapu III. Sam is a graduate of Saint Louis School and was the lead singer of the song on the video. Sam is a very successful and busy entertainer, but he gave of his time willingly both in the recording studio and at school last week Thursday when he assisted me in introducing our new video to our students in Mamiya Theater. The picture below was taken as he spoke to our young men about what it means to be a part of the brotherhood.

So far, our video has been viewed by over 11,000 people on YouTube. Our hope is that each and every Saint Louis graduate will eventually have the chance to see it and share in the celebration of their Crusader history. By sending out the link below to your friends and family, we can work towards that goal. In addition to the graduates of Saint Louis School, our hope is for the people of France to see the video that celebrates our special relationship with them.

Thank you for being a part of our Saint Louis School ohana! The video is here: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ca0T-cmh7Yw.
